At 11 o'clock waters of the Monongahela waters indicate waters of the Monongahela. At 11 o'clock a.m. the Monongahela marks indicate thirty-two feet—a fall of sixteen inches since midnight. The Allegheny is declining less rapidly, with thirty-three feet ten inches—a drop of eight inches from the highest point reached. It is believed the worst is over, and that the water will now rapidly decline. Rain fell all night, and the steamer Belle Prince has the indications this morning are for continued light rains through the day, followed by colder and clearing weather. No accurate figures can yet be given as to the damage, but the most conservative admit damage of the fill and the statement of the houses in some overflowed as high as the houses in some parts. The weather is cloudy and cool.
